What is Mathematic Formula Calculator? Mathematic Formula Calculator is a simple command-line program developed to generate math equations using x and y coordinates. It can be used in two modes: point mode and Y-intercept mode. The point mode allows you to generate point equations, such as $y = x$. In this mode, the y and x values are the only inputs required. The y-intercept mode simulates the process of graphing a line. It is the only mode in this program. If the x and y values are the same, then the calculated equation will be simply $y = x$. If x and y are set to the same values, then the equation will be $y = x$. If the y value is set to a number greater than the x value, then the equation will be $y = x + y - x$. This is an equation for the line $y = x + y - x$. Mathematic Formula Calculator Features: 1. Support for displaying both regular and scientific notation 2. Support for float, int, double, and decimal 3. Equations can be solved for both variables by assigning a value and pressing enter 4. Equations will be automatically generated for any x and y values, using the point mode only 5. Equations will be automatically generated for any x and y values, using the y-intercept mode only 6. Equations will be automatically generated for any x and y values, using both the point mode and the y-intercept mode 7. Equations can be saved in a text file and loaded later, allowing you to study and modify them later 8.
