Supreme Court, not by this court. The plaintiff also cites cases from other jurisdictions which hold that under similar circumstances, the court had the duty to grant a continuance of a summary judgment. This court does not find the cited cases persuasive authority because of the fact that there is no evidence in the record that the trial court was aware of the cases. The only reference in the record to the cases is contained in plaintiff's reply brief. The record does not disclose that the trial court was made aware of the cases cited to us on the continuance issue. Both the trial and this court were unaware of these cases. Our research discloses that, at most, only the dissent of the Appellate Division judge is pertinent authority for plaintiff's argument because the dissent was not cited to this court by the plaintiff when this matter was argued. We find the cases relied on by plaintiff to be unpersuasive because this was not the basis of the Appellate Division dissent, and because we are not aware of any notice to the trial court of these cases and their effect on the outcome of the trial. In the absence of any citation to the record, we are unable to consider the merits of plaintiff's argument that it should have been given a continuance of the trial and we therefore decline to extend the time for filing the notice of appeal. We note that the notice of appeal was served more than 15 days after the entry of judgment on the defendant's motion for summary judgment. ORCP 67 B. Under the circumstances, we find that plaintiff's failure to timely file the notice of appeal should be excused. In view of our disposition of this case, we need not consider the question of the timeliness of the service of the notice of appeal. Appeal dismissed. Ivan Semeniuk
