Mar 4, 2012. 1f55a765e1 4shared.(CNN) LeBron James tried to talk to the construction workers on the roof of the I Promise School in Akron, Ohio, after the basketball star arrived at the facility earlier this month. The I Promise School opened for the 2018-2019 school year on September 5, and the LeBron James Family Foundation has donated more than $35 million to renovate and equip the school for at least 780 students There's a slight catch, though. The construction workers on the roof don't speak English. "He was on the roof, and we just started talking and just chatting, and he was able to communicate well with those people." Akron Public Schools Superintendent Dr. Brett Lopez told CNN. "He had a chance to say hi, to tell them he's going to be a part of the school. And it was a great moment." Later, James "conducted an interview with the workers, during the school year, via a large speaker on the roof," Dr. Lopez said.
